About one o'clock yesterday morning the Apollo Buildings, at the corner of Fifth and Walnut streets, better known as the Cincinnati Museum, was discovered to be on fire. The watchmen gave the alarm, but before the firemen could arrive on the ground the upper stories were enveloped in flames, and in one hour the whole building was in ruins .-When we arrived at the scene of conflagration the flames were fast bursting from the windows of the 4th story. The roof was one broad sheet of flame. The glorious old flag which was tattered and torn at the battle of Chepultepec was still waving from the southern balcony, some intre pid fireman rushed through the flames and bore it off in triumph. The Museum, with its scene properties; its great amount of valuable wax statuary, and its apiece. .. 600.000 curiosities,' were totally destroyed.

T ie flames speedily communicated to the second story destroying the daguerrean gallery of Mr. E. C. Hawkin. His property, including materials and the splended gallery of pictures were mostly saved in a demaged state. His loss is about $500. No insurance.

Mr J. H. Wood also had about ply of Bloomer Nuptial Robes, consist-$6.00 invested in the Museum, which is yesterday morning by Mr. Broadwell, clearing away, preparatory to rebuilding the premises.

Many curious and ludierous incidents occurred during the progress of the flames. A few of the wax figures and stuffed specimens belonging to the Museum, were thrown out of the windows by persons who ventured amongst the scorching flames. These were tossed about among the immensed crowd that had assembled, and we noticed Pontius Pilate and Mary Magdalene, minus their wigs, mounted upon a fire engine, as if doing duty at the brakes. Preserved birds and animals were elevated also to a like dignity .story window, the flames bursting out of his bowels, his jolly waxen head having perished in the flames,

Several serious accidents occurred, none Mr. John Gibbs, a member of Franklin spiring strains. Fire Co., was muched burned and brused by the falling of a portion of the wall .-He was taken home by his brother firemen, and we learn is doing well. Mr. George Hargrave was also hit on the head with a brick, and badly wounded.

The Market house and other buildings adjacent caught fire several times from falling cinders, but little damage was done. Several persons were arrested in ring in about one minute. Young Logan who happened to be standing on the bank, flew to her rescue, and succeeded in getting her safely on shore-but lost his own ballance and fell into the boiling surge. The young lady fainted, and the men on the bank were too much paralized to offer assistance.-Luckily for Logan the water at the spot where he fell formed a whirlpool, and carried him round several times In one of his gyrations he seized a bush that overhung the water, and succeeded in extricating himself from his peritous position .-- Had he fallen a foot further out-beyond the edge of the whirlpool no human aid could have prevented him from being carried over the frightful cataract .- Delphi Times.
